Tamarack Talk

A poet should express the spirit of his times, should be abreast of the times, conversant with the world in which we live, responsive and expressive of the trend of their age. Many persons believe that we have no poets that are actually cognizant of the intricacies of industrial and modern America; that all of our poets today write of nature, the woods and fields and the country, when they live in cities and make most of their contacts in city life.

Is it not the city that the poets of our time write of? Therefore, why not more poems from the city, more delving into the vagaries of city life, of the Broadway, of the Street, of the Big Man, of the modern American, and industrialists, yes, even salesmen?

Of course the easiest thing to do is to turn at once to Carl Sandburg, the great shouter of modern America. But some of us are not satisfied with Sandburg. So we shall not turn to him—at least not at once.

The city speaks one way through its parks where one finds people of all types. Every park bench has hundreds of stories to tell. Here is a poem on city benches by Sonia Rubiele Novak, taken from the New York Sun.

*****
City Benches

The people seek the benches in the heat of summer's drought and mercurial, blue cold or winter's plague, for benches hold the human spirit in its quest for street or park and find them. Night and day they sit on benches, waiting for someone to sit with them.

Papers sold. A week before take on the worth of gold to avoid eyes anticipate a thief. A heavy mother sinks beside a sheet. And neither one resents the other. A rabbit and a priest sit down, believing in God is lined with benches kneeling in every tongue. One language covers all.

A timely poem is the following, though many may not agree to the thought therein:

*****
Stock Exchange

Each life is but a little stock exchange. Wherein all values rise and fall; all hearts keep faithful records of each leap and range. Statistics that resemble fever charts. Therein things most desired are set at prices which no one can afford to pay. In most days, street cars, twilights, radios, wires, ad-vice.

In such abundance that their values slump. There, too, one finds such panics as have shocked. All lands, wherever industry is rife—Increasing poverty when overstocked. The more one has, the poorer is his life. Yes, so it is; no matter what his shares. Each life is but a play of bulls and bears. —Israel Newman.

Now to Carl Sandburg and we shall take just the one poem from his many thoughts on the city:

*****
Again?

Old Man Woodworth put up a building. There it was, his dream all true. The biggest building in the world. Babel, the Nineveh Hanging Gardens, at Karnak, all old, outlashed. And now, here at last, what of it? What about it? Well, every morning we walk around it and look up. And every evening we look up. It means and where it is going.

It's a dream, all true; going somewhere. That's a church, women buying musters, Wire cloth discharges, ten cent sheet music. They paid for it. Look what the wilderness of America can do with their nickels. Or see what a nickel and a dime can do. And that would be clear Old Man Woodworth's Head: it was a mystery, a dream, the biggest building in the world. Babel, the Nineveh Hanging Gardens, Karnak, all old. The will of the old man is out. And the widow gets thirty million dollars. Enough to put up another building. Bigger than Babel, the Nineveh Hanging Gardens. Karnak, another mystery, another dream. To stand and look up.

Let us turn away from the city, as such, and take a glimpse of modern life in two short poems, which show that the poet in each case certainly was not out of the life about him. The author of one of the poems is unknown to me.

Tragedy!
*****

That morning when my wife eloped With James, our chauffeur, how I moped! What tragedy to life there and I'm dashed if I can start the car!

*****
End of the Honeymoon
*****

In June they got it, by now He's learned he's got a boss. Who'll serve him spinach—Darn! Darn! Darn! (From the Cincinnati Enquirer).

We shall hear from the cities again in a different tone.

Mrs. William P. Smith most delightfully entertained the members of the Past Grange Association of Woodland Rehekah Lodge at her home on Smith street, Wednesday evening. Each guest was supposed to be 12 years of age or younger and all ages from three to twelve were well demonstrated. They appeared in costumes from rompers to sailor suits and flappers and school girls were very attractive. A delicious lunch was served and a pleasant evening enjoyed.

All of the village schools enjoyed a Christmas party and tree at the vestry of Calvary Community church on Thursday afternoon. A very fine program was given and Santa Claus appeared and gave out the gifts. The schools closed that day for Christmas week.

About twenty-one Rehekahs went to Norway, Friday evening and attended the meeting of Norway Rehekah Lodge. A fine supper and the degree work was enjoyed by these members of Woodland Rehekah Lodge.

HIGH SCHOOL FAIR

South Paris high school staged their annual fair, Friday, in the Association Hall, opening with a sale at 2:30 in the afternoon.

The senior class had a booth, where food was sold and a beano game was operated. Candy was sold by the juniors, operated a bowling alley and conducted obstacle golf, provided by J. Harold Neal.

Canned goods, vegetables and ice cream were handled by the sophomores, while the freshmen conducted the fancy table, exploited a grab bag and sold hot dogs. The full issue of the Chronicle was at this table.

A stage show entertained the patrons during the sale and included selections by the high school orchestra, a reading by Miss Luchina Ripley, saxophone duets, Evelyn Cummings and Gordon Thayer and a pantomime.

A minstrel show and musical review under the direction of Mrs. Helen Shaw, teacher of music in the town schools was an elaborate program for the evening.

A colorful circle with a strong chorus, was the setting during a first part on par with many semi-professional aggregations. Lloyd Gates as Uncle Sam presided in the middle with ace-black comedians, R. Stiles, W. Irvine, S. Whitney, G. Twitcheil, L. Brown and L. Morrisette on the ends.

Jokes, and songs, ballads and a number of chorus numbers during the first part were good.

Good vaudeville acts made up the olio. There was fifty stepping, duo singing and chatter and a breezy sketch. The solo acrobatic dancing by Miss Frances Westcott of Lewiston was along professional lines and the work of an artist. She earned several recalls.

Mrs. Shaw was at the piano during the show and assisted by Howard Shaw, saxophone, Miss Gertrude Tins, violin and Walter Martin. Valuable assistance on the program was given by Miss Eleanor Westcott and Harold A. Anderson.

Program follows:

Two games of basketball open the season in the high school gymnasium on Friday night. The boys and girls' teams will meet combinations of graduates and interesting sport is expected. A good turnout will start the season right and encourage Coach Small's outfit to get into the game.

Gordon Stewart is home from Hebron Academy for Christmas with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. D. M. Stewart.

A mail shipment of 150 sleds and 100 pairs of skis was sent from South Paris as Christmas presents to children who are state wards. Secretary Grube B. Cornish, assistants, supervised the work of mailing from the Paris Manufacturing Co. where the goods were sent out. Each gift was addressed directly to the boy or girl who no doubt has received the present by this time.

Singers from the churches will gather around the Community tree in Market Square, Christmas eve, at 9 o'clock. Led by Clarence Huff with the trumpet, carols will be sung. This will climax the exercises in the churches during the early evening hours.

The engagement is announced of Catherine Janet Chapman, daughter of Donald P. Chapman, to Kenneth L. Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon L. Russell.

The Lundy Class of the Congregational Sunday School met at Donald Witham's and elected officers under the supervision of the teacher, Elmore E. Bingham. The evening was devoted to games after an amount of business was transacted. Officers elected are:

Mrs. Marcelle Savage, representative of the Universal Producing Co. of Fairfield, Iowa, has placed the famous comedy "Aunt Lucia" as a benefit for the American Legion. The dates are Jan. 1 and 2 in Association Hall.

Frank Burnett of South Paris was before Trial Justice Albert D. Park on Saturday, charged with illegal fishing at North Pond, on Friday. Warden Fred Philbrook alleged eight lines were set while the law permits five for each person. In defense, the respondent claimed he had made the sets in advance, while waiting for a companion to arrive. A fine of $10 was suspended, but costs of $8.95 were paid.

The spiritual circle met last week with Mrs. Peterson but was postponed this week because of the holiday season. Dr. and Mrs. Clement and Mr. Monphoria of Lewiston will conduct a meeting at Mrs. Peterson's on December 31, at 8 o'clock sharp.

Frank McGinley of Bangor was in town the first of the week, also spent some time with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McGinley at North Paris.

The Mason Manufacturing Co. factory is closed this week for the annual Christmas vacation for repairs and some changes in the mill.

The Camp Fire Girls will tour the streets, Christmas eve, singing carols. A candle in the window will be a signal for them to stop and sing a number of familiar Christmas hymns.

Nelson Haskell of Northeastern University is spending the holiday recess with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Haskell.

Strand Theatre opens December 25, in Odd Fellows' Block, fully equipped to produce sound pictures. The acoustics are good, the ceiling having been padded with absorbing felt. Arthur, the manager of Rex Theatre, Norway, is manager, with Ernest Davis as projectionist and Edward "Ned" Whitney in charge of the door. The engineer made quick work of installing the machines and forming connections with the electrical system, so after the try-out Monday evening, the outfit was declared satisfactory.

TRIBUTE TO BRITAIN'S HONORED DEAD

George B. Hickie, who resided in South Paris some years and employed in the Paris Manufacturing Co. factory is composing a book of verse. He has contributed many verses to editors. Now his stories and poems are printed, and he bids fair to break into some of the prominent magazines as an interesting story writer. Mrs. Thomas Clegg of South Paris is his sister and contributes the following poem, composed by her brother:

Pro Patria Libertas

What meaning has this shaft we see
Crowning your hill so high
Surrounded by alighting birds
Twin eagles—out the sky.
And the faint question twice,
Go see, and read instead.
The names are upon its base—
New Britain's Soldier Dead.

A city tribute to the men
Who fought and bled, and died,
Carrying flag and honor high,
Far o'er the heaving tide.
Everlasting o'er our head,
Looks down upon their names inscribed—
New Britain's Soldier Dead.

And grant that column long may stand,
Acresing Walnut Hill,
Weathering aches and time through years,
To those who years ago had warred,
That peace might reign instead.
In memory—their still shall live—
New Britain's Soldier Dead.

—George B. Hickie.

Waterford Man Shot

Woman Claims Self Defense the Motive

John Kustonen, 40, of Temple Hill, was shot through the heart, Tuesday, by Mrs. Sauni Hinden 40 after she had been knocked down in her own home in Waterford by the alleged assailant. Kustonen was killed instantly. Mrs. Hinden was arrested by Sheriff Harry O. Stimson and Deputy Charles Huff and taken to the county jail at South Paris, where it is reported she admitted killing Kustonen in self defense. An autopsy was performed Wednesday by Dr. W. B. Raymond, county medical examiner.

The affair occurred in the Hinden home where a number of Finnish people were holding pre-Christmas festivities, and according to their custom, liquor was in evidence. The party was in full swing when Kustonen, an uninvited guest, joined the merry-makers.

After he had taken several drinks, he became boisterous, it is alleged, and Mrs. Hinden as hostess and several of her guests tried to persuade Kustonen to leave. He refused, it is said, and is alleged to have struck Mrs. Hinden a stinging blow with his fist, knocking her to the floor.

Members of the party then seized hold of Kustonen and were pushing him toward the door when Mrs. Hinden arose and ordered him to leave the place and stay away.

This apparently further angered Kustonen, who is alleged to have drawn an automatic Army pistol from his pocket and threatened to kill Mrs. Hinden. Believing that he intended to carry out his threat, Mrs. Hinden seized a shot gun loaded with a bullet for deer and fired at the man at close range. The bullet passed through his heart and also through the side of the house.

Examination of the Army automatic pistol with which Kustonen is said to have threatened Mrs. Hinden, revealed that the weapon was not loaded. However, members of the party did not know this until after he had been killed.

So far as known, Kustonen had not been previously involved in trouble with any of the members of the settlement, and when he was not drinking, was regarded as a quiet, peaceable man.

Kustonen, who has lived at Harrison and Waterford for several years, is well known. He is separated from his wife, who is said to be caring for their two small children.

Mrs. Hinden was arrested Wednesday morning before Trial Justice Albert D. Park at South Paris on the charge of manslaughter. A plea of not guilty was entered, but probable cause was found and the respondent was held for the February term of court in the sum of $2,000. She was committed while arrangements for securing bail were made. Alton C. Wheeler of Auburn is attorney for Mrs. Hinden.
